UNUSUAL NESTING BEHAVIOR OF EASTERN PHOEBE

Ron Hoff and Dollyann Myers
282 Hackworth Lane, Clinton, TN 37716

Eastern Phoebes (Sayornis phoebe) have been nesting in various locations around our home in southern Anderson County, Tennessee for years, often on a ceiling fan on the front porch. Many years they build two consecutive nests and fledge two broods successfully. In April 2013 they had a nest on the fan and raised the young to fledging. I cleaned the old nest off the fan on 14 May. On 17 May they had built a new nest on the left side of the fan. No incubation activity was noticed for 7 or 8 days, which is normal behavior (Weeks 1978). Another nest was begun on the right side of the fan on approximately 25 May, attached to the first nest on the left side. Eastern Phoebes are documented to build odd nests (Weeks, 1977). Hinde (1973) pointed out that building of even simple nests requires behavior of great complexity, which can make deviations from the norm difficult to explain.

Incubation of the right nest appeared to begin around 27 May. For several days it appeared that only the right nest was being incubated. However, by 30 May both nests were being incubated at the same time, side by side (Figure 1). Weeks (2011) summarized the literature and found that there are no documented observations of more than one Eastern Phoebe pair nesting on a single structure simultaneously. On 6 June we counted eggs in the twin nests. There were seven eggs in the left nest and eight eggs in the right nest, which is higher than average. Weeks (1978) stated that approximately 95% of all clutches have four or five eggs, and clutches of three or six eggs were relatively rare. Most of the nests at our home in previous years had five eggs. Clutch sizes are usually substantially lower where birds built new rather than using old nests and statant rather than adherent nests (Weeks 1978), so the fact that both our nests had way above the average number of eggs was notable.

On 15 June one adult on each nest was incubating, when the bird incubating on the right nest flew off. The bird on the left nest then moved over to the right nest and resumed incubating there, leaving the left nest unattended. We watched this several times. The most birds we have seen at any one time is three, suggesting two females and a male. Polygony has been documented for Eastern Phoebes, although it is unusual (Weeks 2011). We also saw a bird incubating on the left nest fly off, and then a different bird fly in to resume incubating the left nest, leaving the right nest unattended for a few minutes. We watched for another few minutes and saw two birds incubating at random on both nests, interchanging which nests they were incubating with no particular pattern that we could discern. We could not tell the birds from each other; they were not banded or marked in any way.

Eggs in the right nest hatched around 22 June; at least five of the eight eggs had hatched. There were no mites observed in the nests or on the base of the ceiling fan. On 29 June it appeared that the left nest was not being actively incubated. We also noticed that we were only seeing two adults and not three as in earlier observations. On checking the nests, I discovered there were no young in the left nest, only eggs. While checking that nest my hand was covered quickly by many hundreds of tiny mites. The mites were also on the base of the fan itself. The young in the right nest appeared to be growing well, but their eyes were still closed. There were no mites in the right nest, but there were mites on the base of the fan there as well.

On 1 July I had expected one or more of the adults might be resting under the porch because of a heavy rain, but there were none. Suspecting a mite infestation, I got the ladder and looked into the nest to find all the young in the right nest dead, covered with thousands of mites. According to Bent (1942), these were likely the northern fowl mite (Ornithonyssus sylviarum). The adults were not seen this day and have not been seen since. We have had several species of birds nest around our home in the years we have been here (since 1995) and we have never noticed any mite infestations before this one.

Errata - The editors apologize for an error in the article "Harlequin duck in northeast Tennessee" (The Migrant 84(4):125). The second paragraph should read as follows:

This was a small, dark, chocolate-brown diving duck. The small rounded head had three white spots on each side: a teardropped-hyphen shaped spot below the eye, a smaller round spot above the lores, and an oval near the ear coverts. The bill was rather small and blackish. The wings were all dark. Its flight was rapid and low over the water. The overall color and head spotting were similar to that of a female Surf Scoter (Melanitta perspicillata), but this bird was smaller, had a much smaller bill, and had a different pattern of spots on the head. The Harlequin Duck alternated bouts of diving in the strong currents to forage with periods of rest on the shore. The section of the river favored by the duck was shallow and rocky with the strongest currents occurring during the daily releases from the Fort Patrick Henry Dam, just a few miles upstream.

ROUND TABLE NOTES

SCISSOR-TAILED FLYCATCHER OCCURRENCE IN TENNESSEE - In mid-July 2012 I was driving down a road in Springfield, Robertson County, Tennessee, when I caught a glimpse through the passenger window of a bird in flight. My immediate impression was that it was a Scissor-tailed Flycatcher (Tyrannus forficatus), but an immediate pass back past the spot failed to make a confirmation. Two weeks later as I was driving the same stretch of road I again spotted a long-tailed, light-colored bird, this time sitting atop a small bush. It was confirmed as a Scissor-tailed Flycatcher. A day later I saw two individuals, and a few days after that, I observed a juvenile with them. Although they probably nested nearby, I couldn't rule out the possibility that they were passing through as a family group.

In the summer of 2013 I found a pair of Scissor-tailed Flycatchers at the same location, near the entrance to Highland Crest College on William A. Batson Parkway. In June 2013, I watched them build a nest in a small oak (Quercus spp.). I stopped by almost daily to check their progress. Soon it was clear that chicks had hatched, and within a week I could see 4 young in the nest when adults arrived with food (figure 1). In July I watched when those chicks fledged, first venturing from the nest onto the outer branches of the nest tree before taking their first flight to neighboring trees, displaying remarkable skill in the air as they settled together more than 100 meters away in a stand of larger trees. I was surprised the next day when the family of 6 was joined by another adult male, who flew in and engaged the resident male in an aerial pas de deux, the 2 of them flying upward about 100 meters before the visiting male flew away toward neighboring fields. The observation raised many questions: Where did this bird originate? Had he been nearby all along? Was he a young bird from the previous year? I never saw him again.

In 2014 the pair returned again in April and began nest building in early May. However, their first attempt failed. On 30 May I arrived and the female was not incubating and was not nearby as usual. Although the nest was intact, I observed broken eggs on the ground. A week later the female was building a new nest a short distance away which successfully fledged 4 young. In July I observed the 4 chicks becoming noticeably excited, flapping and testing their wings with increasing intensity, encouraged by the female who would sit on a nearby branch, holding an insect in her beak, vocalizing insistently until each chick became confident or hungry enough to move toward her and take their first tentative flights from their nest to nearby branches.

The observations described here represent the first record and first nesting occurrence of Scissor-tailed Flycatchers in Robertson County. While still rare, Scissor-tailed Flycatchers are regular breeders in Tennessee, and have expanded their range eastward from the Midwest.

The first documented Scissor-tailed Flycatcher in Tennessee was in 1964, and the number of occurrences has increased continuously. The following is a timeline (not exhaustive) of the Scissor-tailed Flycatcher's move into Tennessee based on reports in The Migrant and eBird, with a particular focus on summer sightings:

- 1964: The first Scissor-tailed Flycatcher record for Tennessee occurred in Shelby County.
- 1978: The first known breeding attempt by the species in the state took place in Rutherford County. At least one adult was observed at the site through 1985.

- 1983: Two juveniles were observed in late summer at the Rutherford County site.
- 1983-1986: An individual was seen at the same area in Meigs County four years in a row.
- 1989: A nest attempt was observed in Franklin County.
- 1990: A nest attempt was reported in Hardin County.
- 1992: Nest building was observed in Winchester, Franklin County.
- 1999: A pair nested in Lake County.
- 1999-2000: A nesting pair was found in Williamson County.
- 2000-2005: Observations in June and July were reported to e-Bird from Bledsoe, Lake, Madison, Marion, Maury, Putnam, Rutherford, and Shelby counties; August in Warren County,
- 2006-2010: Unicoi and Van Buren counties were added to the list of counties reporting summer sightings to e-Bird.
- 2011- 2014: Bedford, Lawrence, Robertson and Sequatchie counties joined the ever-growing list of counties in Tennessee with Scissor-tailed Flycatcher records.

FIRST RECORD OF PAINTED BUNTING IN FAYETTE COUNTY, TENNESSEE -

At approximately 0730 on 29 April 2014 I observed two birds land on the ground under one of my feeders. One was easily identified as a male Indigo Bunting (Passerina cyanea). The other bird was about 15 meters away and was bright green, not a shade of olive like many other birds I've observed. I was able to observe the bird for about five minutes. The bird was a female Painted Bunting (Passerina ciris). I took two pictures through my glass door before both birds took flight. I referred to Peterson's Field Guide to Birds of Eastern and Central North America and Robbins and Zim's Guide to Field Identification of Birds of North America. From the pictures, Martha Waldron and Dick Preston verified the species. After the initial sighting the bird was not observed again in my yard. This is the first verified record of a Painted Bunting in Fayette County, Tennessee.

282 Hackworth Lane, Clinton, TN 37716

This year 249 observers on 13 counts spent nearly 758 party hours in recording 68,946 individual birds, representing 220 species. The weather was a bit of a hindrance as 10 of the 13 counts experienced some rain and a couple of other counts had gusty winds. Temperatures ranged from 33-85° F. Notable highlights included Snowy Egret, Laughing Gull and a Brewer's Warbler. Connecticut Warbler was the only warbler species not reported. A total of only 5 Loggerhead Shrikes total was found on the counts.

MINUTES OF THE TOS 2014 SPRING
BOARD OF DIRECTORS MEETING

3 May 2014
CHATTANOOGA, TENNESSEE

The annual meeting of the Tennessee Ornithological Society (TOS) was held 2 – 4 May 2014 in Chattanooga, Tennessee hosted by the Chattanooga Chapter. Field trips were offered to the following locations: Cravens House, Standifer Gap Marsh, Chester Frost Park, Tennessee River Gardens, Reflection Riding Arboretum & Nature Center and Brainerd Levee.

The Directors meeting was called to order by President Ron Hoff at 1:07 pm. Secretary Cyndi Routledge confirmed there was a quorum. A motion was made to accept the minutes of the Fall Meeting as presented; it passed unanimously.

REPORTS OF OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS AT LARGE

TREASURER: Mac McWhirter reported that the financial condition of the Society remains good and presented financial statements for the year ended 31 December 2013. Investments increased in value over the twelve months by $40,515 to end with a fair market value of $302,870. He cautioned that almost $32,800 of this change in value was due to market gains and $8,700 was realized income from interest and dividends. There were no expenses for the publishing of The Migrant at year-end; therefore the surplus is artificially inflated. A reserve for future publishing of 12 issues has been set at $25,200, and two back issues have been published and mailed since the start of calendar year 2014.

The Directors and Officers Liability insurance policy was renewed for a three year term at a total cost of $2,992, or just under $1,000 per year.

Total regular memberships have increased slightly to a total of 658; however there has been a decline in institutional and library subscriptions due to delay in printing of The Migrant.

THE MIGRANT: Co-editors Susan McWhirter and Martha Waldron reported that March and June 2011 have been printed.

THE TENNESSEE WARBLER: Editor Theresa Graham asked that submissions for the next issue be sent to her by June 2014.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

TENNESSEE BIRD RECORDS COMMITTEE: Secretary Kevin Calhoon reported on the most recent review and vote of records submitted.

CONSERVATION POLICY COMMITTEE: Conservation Policy Committee co-chairs Melinda Welton and Dick Preston, along with members Gregg Elliott, Cyndi Routledge and Vickie Henderson reported the following:

- Lands Unsuitable for Mining Petition: TOS helped draft a petition to protect the ridge tops and watersheds of a substantial part of the North Cumberland Wildlife Management Area from surface coal mining. These ridges are significant breeding habitats for Cerulean Warblers. The development of the required Environmental Impact Statement may take as long as 2 years.

- Renewable Energy: President Ron Hoff sent a letter to the TVA Board of Directors supporting the reduction of carbon-based energy sources used by TVA and increasing the development of renewable sources of energy, particularly solar energy.
- Feral pigs: TOS joined the Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency as a partner in their efforts to contain the growing feral pig problem in Tennessee. Feral pigs can do substantial damage to the forest floor impacting ground nesting birds and contributing to erosion and water pollution.
- Wind Energy: TOS urged the Secretary of the Interior to require a nationwide EIS to assess the impact of locating wind farms in important bird habitats and along migration routes.
- Cats Indoors: TOS urged the Secretary of the Interior to pursue aggressive policies to protect public lands from feral cats.
- Pesticides: TOS urged the Environmental Protection Agency calling for a ban on the use of neonicotinoids in treating seeds used in agriculture.
- Conservation Funding: TOS urged Congress to restore funding for several important conservation funds including the North American Wetlands Conservation Fund, the Neotropical Migratory Bird Fund, Forest Legacy Program, and the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

FINANCE: Chairperson Susan Hollyday thanked the members Danny Gaddy, Jean Alexander, Dick Preston, and Mac McWhirter (ex officio) who audited the financial records of the TOS treasurer for the year 2013. The records are in excellent order and are sufficient for the accounting of the finances of TOS. Mac McWhirter has maintained these records in an excellent manner.

OLD BUSINESS

TOS Logo Competition – Board of Directors voted on the submission of logos. None were accepted; it was decided to combine the best features of the favorite two.

Tennessee Breeding Bird Atlas – The possibility of updating the Tennessee Breeding Bird Atlas was discussed. At this time there was no interest in conducting a new atlas, so the option of individual county forays will be pursued.

Discover Birds Activity Book – Cyndi Routledge reported the receipt on a $12,000 grant from the Crane Fund. Within the guidelines of that grant 12,000 books will be printed at a cost of $10,602. Remaining funds will be used for postage and other administrative expenses.

Update on 100th Anniversary – Steve Routledge reported that the dates for the 100th Anniversary celebration are 30 April - 3 May 2015. The celebration will be held at Montgomery Bell State Park in Burns, Tennessee.

NEW BUSINESS

Tennessee Bird Record Committee – The Committee reached consensus to modernize the guidelines for reporting. Kevin Calhoun will provide recommendations from the committee at the Fall Meeting.

Money for tracking device for Golden Eagles – State Ornithologist Scott Somershoe requested $2,900 to purchase and pay for data for a transmitter for the ongoing TWRA Golden Eagle Project in Tennessee. After a discussion it was recommended that Scott submit a formal request to the Conservation and Research Committee Chair 30-days prior to the 2014 Fall Meeting.

Sponsoring a Young Birder to the ABA Young Birder's Conference – The approximate cost is $1,200 to attend these conferences. The consensus was that TOS pursue this idea, set guidelines for an application, allocate budgeted funds and set up a committee. Conservation and Research Committee Chairperson Dr. Michael Collins, Danny Gaddy, Dick Preston, and Chris Welch volunteered to sit on a sub-committee and head up this project.

Nomination and Election of President-Elect – The nominating committee met and respectfully nominated Steven Routledge for President-elect of TOS.

Melinda Welton suggested yearly funding of four conservation organizations: Southern Environmental Law Center, Watchable Wildlife Program, Ebird and the American Bird Conservancy. Discussion ensued that the existing Conservation and Research Committee provides a mechanism for supporting organizations. Mac McWhirter moved that a budgeted amount of $5,500 be available to the Conservation and Research Committee to include $3,000 to Research Funding and $2,500 to conservation organizations. Martha Waldron seconded the motion and it passed unanimously.

The meeting was adjourned at 3:18pm.

TOS Spring Meeting

TENNESSEE ORNITHOLOGICAL SOCIETY ANNUAL BUSINESS MEETING

The Annual Spring business meeting was held at the Country Inns and Suites in Chattanooga, Tennessee on 3 May 2014. President Ron Hoff called the meeting to order at 3:35pm and provided a summary of the discussions and actions taken at the Board of Directors meeting.

The nominating committee submitted Steven Routledge as President-elect. There were no nominations from the floor and he was elected unanimously.

Distinguished Service Awards – Awards were given to David Vogt (Chattanooga) and Mac McWhirter (Highland Rim).

The meeting was adjourned at 4:24pm. The members of the society concluded the evening with snacks aboard the Tennessee River Gorge Explorer for a river excursion.

Respectfully submitted,
Cyndi Routledge, Secretary

The 2014 DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARDS PRESENTED TO N. P. MCWHIRTER AND DAVID VOGT

N. P. MCWHIRTER

Gaynell Perry
Memphis, Tennessee

N. P. (Mac) McWhirter began his birding career in a bit more dramatic fashion than most of the rest of us when, at the age of six, he joined Ben and Lula Coffey on the rooftops of Memphis helping band Chimney Swifts. Mac's father and Ben were colleagues, and Mac has many wonderful memories of time spent with the Coffeys. One of his favorite is Lula allowing him to hold swifts while she attached the bands. He says he was too young to realize he should be a bit afraid being four stories high on a roof top! Recently his memory of Ben and Lula's unique chimney-top trap helped when Rhodes professor Michael Collins built his own trap for banding.

Mac McWhirter with TOS President Ron Hoff

Over the years Mac shared his love for nature by leading Cub Scout and Boy Scout troops, and especially by teaching the Bird Studies Badge. Every overnight campout and Philmont trek became a chance to teach bird identification.

On their farm in Rock Island Mac and his wife, Susan, use farming practices that maintain and enhance the land for conservation. They have erected over forty bird houses there, and recently Mac constructed Wood Duck houses for Burgess Falls State Natural Area. While on the farm Mac has had a chance to perfect birding from a tractor, which led to finding Sora on the farm.

Mac has been an active member of TOS since 1985 and has taken part in many different state counts and Christmas counts and has represented the Memphis Chapter as a State Director for several years, but it is his role as state treasurer for which he earns the Distinguished Service Award. For over nine years, through extremely trying economic times, he has managed the finances of the Society with a steady and knowledgeable hand.

Early on in his tenure as treasurer, Mac tackled the difficult task of helping to reset dues while at the same time encouraging more and more folks to become life and sustaining members. He works closely with all chapter treasurers as well as at-large members.

In addition to the accounting responsibilities, Mac makes wise investment decisions that benefit our organization and ultimately result in increasing our ability to contribute to bird study, education, and conservation throughout the state. Although Mac might never mention it, all this often requires in excess of 200 hours a year of Mac's time, which he generously gives. The job of treasurer puts him in constant contact with people from all over the state of Tennessee, which is just fine with him because, after all, Mac McWhirter is truly a people person.

DAVID VOGT

Laura Lewis
Chattanooga, Tennessee

David Vogt joined TOS in 1978 and has remained an active and engaged member with numerous significant contributions to Tennessee ornithology. He has been a consistent and trusted leader in the state society, as well as the Nashville and Chattanooga chapters and served in various capacities, including field trip leader and holding chapter offices. David has participated in numerous Spring, Fall, and Christmas Bird Count, and notably, worked many hours gathering data and writing species accounts for the Tennessee Breeding Bird Atlas. David is an outstanding artist, and he contributed several illustrations for it.

David has been a certified master bander for 27 years, licensed by the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service, and he has used that expertise on numerous long term banding sites that have added to the knowledge base about Tennessee's birds. For example, he ran the MAPS banding station in Chattanooga, established and ran the banding station at Whigg Meadow in the Tellico Ranger District of the Cherokee National Forest for 15 years. For establishing the Whigg Meadow banding station, he was recently awarded both the United States Department of Agriculture Forest Service, Southern Region, Individual Volunteer Honor Award, and nationally, the Presidential Volunteer Service Award.

For his distinguished service to the Tennessee Ornithological Society for nearly four decades, we present him with the TOS Distinguished Service Award.

THE SPRING SEASON

Richard L. Knight, Editor

1 March - 31 May 2014

Cool early season temperatures moderated by mid-season, but seemed to slow migration. Rainfall totals were generally near normal to slightly deficient. A strong winter storm passed through the state in early March, with two significant avian fallouts occurring in its wake. One involved American Tree Sparrows in middle and west Tennessee; the other involved Red-necked Grebes, mainly in east Tennessee. The grebe fallout was part of an exodus from the Great Lakes due to above average amounts of ice cover. Following an excellent flight during the latter half of the winter period, good numbers of several typically scarce diving ducks continued into March; particularly noteworthy among these were White-winged Scoter, Long-tailed Duck, and Common Merganser.

A Vermilion Flycatcher in Gibson County and a Townsend's Solitaire in Morgan County highlighted the list of rarities this spring, along with a Western Kingbird in Lawrence County and a Brown Pelican in Marion County. A group of seven Pacific Loons in Davidson County established a new high count for the state. Good numbers and diversity of shorebirds were encountered, while the songbird migration was generally modest. The regional reports that follow contain many more items of interest.

WESTERN COASTAL PLAIN REGION - - Temperatures and rainfall were generally within norms for the season. A series of thunderstorms produced serious linear winds causing heavy localized damage to trees in the northern portions of the region.

Interesting sightings included White-winged Scoters and Long-tailed Ducks, American Tree Sparrows appeared at four locations, while a Harris's Sparrow was nicely photographed at a feeder in Shelby County. A single Black-billed Cuckoo was reported in Obion County. Thanks to all who took the time to report their observations and especially to those who provided photographs.

HIGHLAND RIM AND BASIN REGION - - Weather during the season was a wild back and forth swing from warm to cold with almost unprecedented cold coming through the region in early March. The snow, ice, and brutal cold of early March brought a major influx of American Tree Sparrows across the region, with several likely first county records or high counts. The same front brought large numbers of Red-necked Grebes, primarily to East Tennessee; however, several birds were found in the eastern portion of the region, with most being first county records. Spring migration was very good until early May when southerly winds dominated and passerine migration was slow across the region as migrants continued over the region and did not stop. Rare but regular and annual migrants such as Alder Flycatcher and Connecticut Warbler were not reported. Some typically common to abundant breeding species were regularly noted as being uncommon or nearly absent through May (i.e., Red-eyed Vireo, Ruby-throated Hummingbird, Eastern Wood-Pewee, among others). Other highlights of the season were a very rare Least Tern at Old Hickory Dam, Anhingas at Old Hickory Lake, a Western Kingbird in Lawrence County, a state high count of Pacific Loons on Percy Priest Lake, and lingering White-winged Scoters and Long-tailed Ducks from the winter irruption.

CUMBERLAND PLATEAU / RIDGE and VALLEY REGION - - Early spring temperatures were noticeably below average, while late season conditions were near normal. Rainfall was deficient throughout the season in northeast Tennessee, but the Chattanooga area had good rains in April. A massive influx of Red-necked Grebes beginning in early March was in response to heavy ice cover on the Great Lakes; the first fallout of these grebes followed a strong storm system. Also notable were good numbers of diving ducks continuing from winter, particularly of Greater Scaup, White-winged Scoter, Long-tailed Duck, and Common Merganser. These, too, were refugees from the icy Great Lakes.

A Brown Pelican near Chattanooga added to the increasing numbers of this species found in Tennessee in recent years. Most reports of Swallow-tailed Kite occur in August, thus one in spring was particularly noteworthy. Shorebird highlights included single reports of Black-necked Stilt and American Avocet, plus good numbers of Willets and White-rumped Sandpipers. A Townsend's Solitaire in Morgan County was the state's fourth overall and second in April.

EASTERN MOUNTAIN REGION - - The period was dry with total precipitation 3.6 inches below normal. March was cooler than normal, but April and May were warmer than normal.

Last year in spring a single Red-necked Grebe on Watauga Lake was considered a very unusual observation. This spring there were hundreds of Red-necked Grebes in East Tennessee. The largest accumulation was outside the mountains, but there were still more than 200 observed in the mountain region. A Mississippi Kite was a remarkable find in Elizabethton. In March a Great Horned Owl with two large downy young was seen in an old raven's nest on a cliff face in Unicoi County. A photograph was taken of a Scissor-tailed Flycatcher in Cades Cove, just the second record from the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

INSTRUCTIONS TO AUTHORS

The Migrant records observations and studies of birds in Tennessee and adjacent areas.

SUBMISSIONS: The original and two copies of the manuscript should be sent to the Editor: Bob Ford, 808 Hatchie, Brownsville, TN 38012 editorthemigrant@gmail.com. Manuscripts that have been published in other journals should not be submitted.

MATERIAL: The subject matter should relate to some phase of Tennessee ornithology. It should be original, factual, concise and scientifically accurate.

STYLE: Both articles and short notes are solicited; recent issues of The Migrant should be used as a guide in the preparation of manuscripts. Where more detail is needed, reference should be made to Scientific Style and Format, eighth edition, by the Council of Science Editors, councilscienceeditors.org.

COPY: Manuscripts should be double-spaced with adequate margins for editorial notations and emailed in Word.docx. Tables and figures should be prepared in a separate file with appropriate headings; see Scientific Style and Format for examples of appropriate form for tables. Photographs intended for reproduction should be at least 300 dpi or sharp with good contrast on glossy white paper. Weights, measurements, and distances should be in metric units. Dates should be in "continental" form (e.g., 16 March 1997). Use the 24-hour clock (e.g., 0500 or 1900).

NOMENCLATURE: The scientific name of a species should be given after the first use of the full common name in the text. The scientific name should be italicized and in parentheses. Names should follow the A. O. U. Check-list of North American Birds (seventh edition, 1998, or supplements).

TITLE: The title should be concise, specific and descriptive.

ABSTRACT: Manuscripts of five or more pages should include an abstract. The abstract should be less than 5% of the length of the manuscript. It should include a brief explanation of why the research was done, the major results, and why the results are important.

LITERATURE CITED: List all literature citations in a "Literature Cited" section at the end of the text. Text citations should include the author and year.

IDENTIFICATION: Manuscripts including reports of rare or unusual species or of species at atypical times should include: date and time, light and weather conditions, exact location, habitat, optical equipment, distance, behavior of bird, comparison with other similar species, characteristic markings, experience of observer, other observers verifying the identification and reference works consulted.

REPRINTS: Reprints are available to authors on request. Billing to authors will be through the TOS treasurer. Request for reprints must be made well in advance of printing.

SEASON REPORTS: Observations that are to be considered for publication in "The Season" section should be mailed to the appropriate Regional Compiler. Consult a recent issue of The Migrant for the name and address of the compiler.
