TOM IMHOF Says:
STUDENT OF ALABAMA BIRDS

"Audubon Field Notes is an unusual magazine with continent-wide coverage which keeps the bird student informed of changes in the abundance of birds, range extensions, invasions, big flights, migration delays and speed-ups, and almost any type of bird movement, with interesting commentary by experts. A bird student without this information is like a physician without his medical journals, a military commander without intelligence reports, a politician without his 'ears to the ground.' He simply cannot afford to be without it."

ATLAS OF AVIAN HEMATOLOGY

ALFRED M. LUCAS and CASIMIR JAMROZ

This reference monograph of basic research prepared at the Regional Poultry Research Laboratory, East Lansing, Michigan (U. S. Department of Agriculture), was written for those who wish to identify accurately different types of avian blood cells. There are 48 plates from original water colors. Blood from representative wild birds is included for comparison with that of the chicken. The monograph covers the cells of the circulating blood in both the adult and embryo. Developmental stages from hematopoietic organs are illustrated and described.

The monograph is the first publication in any language that covers extensively the cytologic aspects of avian hematology.

Copies may be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.
