International Wader Studies

International Wader Studies (IWS) is a fully refereed occasional journal series published by the international Wader Study Group - an independent worldwide association of people interested in or researching waders (shorebirds).

International Wader Studies publishes proceedings based on conferences, symposia and workshops, many arranged by the Wader Study Group, and major analyses of single topics in wader biology. International Wader Studies are generally issued free of charge to all WSG members. Additional copies are available for sale to both members and non-members.

The Wader Study Group also publishes the Wader Study Group Bulletin three times per year. The WSG Bulletin publishes scientific papers, reports, notes, news, views and comment on all aspects of wader biology and its application to conservation.

International Wader Studies replaces volumes previously published as Special Issues (formerly titled Supplements) of the Wader Study Group Bulletin. Publication of International Wader Studies is overseen by a General Editor and an Editorial Board composed initially of the members of the WSG Executive Committee.
