Notes.

Several times lately the robin has been heard singing his full song sotto voce. Although very near the observer the bird sounded as if he was a great distance away. Except for the fact that the bird was singing "to himself" the song did not differ from the ordinary one. Has any other member noticed this?

Among the new members proposed at this election will be noticed the name of one Associate member who wishes to become an Active, and also the name of an old Active member who had dropped out of the Chapter, but now wishes to join again. This is an indication that our affairs are looking up.
