

KEAS (PARROTS) OF NEW ZEALAND, ATTACKING SHEEP.

(One of the many smaller pictures in The Osprey.)

THE OSPREY

Is an established popular monthly which has taken the HIGHEST PLACE in its field. It has UNEQUALED opportunities for securing valuable and interesting contributions, through its close relations with most of the leading ornithologists, and all of the active field naturalists, of America. Not equaled in excellence of illustrations and make-up.

From a Grand-daughter of the Great Audubon:

"It is a beautiful magazine and we all enjoy it very much. It is delightful for those who, like ourselves, love the birds yet are not ornithologists (though I suppose we ought to be). After our immediate family have read and admired it, I lend it to the village library, where it is eagerly sought for, and I hope will interest our boys and young men sufficiently to induce them to protect rather than destroy the birds; even those who do not care so much for natural history are attracted by the beautiful pictures. With every wish for the success of so attractive a publication, I am very truly yours, M. R. AUDUBON."

Its average circulation since its first issue has been GREATER than that of any other published for Ornithology.
