

weeks, on two more occasions more than 100 at a time, once in West Boulder and again on the court house lawn, in the center of the city. I shall eagerly hope for the return of this interesting bird, which is now deemed a resident of Colorado, having been noted every month in the year.

SNOWFLAKE, Plectrophenax vivalis.—We had a visit this Winter from the Snow Buntings. We first saw them on Thursday, February 14; and the last we saw of them was on Thursday, February 28. Almost every day during those two weeks the beautiful creatures fed on the weeds in front of our house. They would be feeding by sunrise and continue until toward noon when usually they would fly away, returning about three o'clock in the afternoon, when they would continue their musical twittering, which was almost like song, and their feeding until after sunset. Most of this time the weather was cold, the thermometer ranging between five and twenty-five above zero.

They did not seem to mind me except when I would raise my field glass, when they would utter a complaining call, rise a little above the weeds and fly several yards, drop and resume their twittering and feeding. One day when I had followed them up and down the field for some time they seemed to grow impatient, rose with a wheeling undulating flight high over a house, swept across the street and began to sing in a high sweet flute-like tone "tsi-a-wee-ee-ee." Then, still singing, they wheeled again and after hovering silently a moment over the weeds, dropped down upon the snow and went to feeding and chirping.

Another day I heard the song when their spirits were undisturbed. It was on a brilliant day when the snow was just beginning to reflect on the sunset glow. I was crossing the field some distance from where they were feeding when all at once several birds rose from the flock soaring high into the sky and pouring forth such a rhapsody as well fitted the glory of the setting sun. It was so full and sweet that I could only drink in its beauty, I could not analyze it.
